

Magic Staff: An Autobiography of Andrew Jackson Davis (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Magic Staff: An Autobiography of Andrew Jackson Davis
A most singular biography of a most singular person is here presented to the world. We regard it as the first rational and readable history of a Clairvoyants experience that has appeared in the language; and, irrespective of its doctrines or philosophies, we look upon it as a valuable accession to biographical literature. This book differs intrinsically, in style, method, and substance, from any of Mr. Davis previous works, which are extensively read and justly held in high estimation on both sides of the Atlantic. Indeed, no other American psychologist has obtained a more wide-spread fame, or given occasion for such extreme differences of opinion. There are, perhaps, thousands who regard Mr. Davis as a person of almost supernatural abilities, while a greater number treat him and his writings with unmitigated prejudice. Hence such a work as we now offer to the public is particularly needed to institute a mean between these two mental extremes. About the Publisher
